STUDIES FROM THE OLD AND NEW TESTAMENTS

by Coleman Overby

Part 1 - WOMEN IN THE OLD TESTAMENT

Revised and expanded by Beth Johnson and the ladies of the North Columbia church of Christ Columbia, South Carolina between 1996 and 1998

© 2009, Beth Johnson
Dedicated to all women who study to show themselves approved unto God—1 Tim. 2:15

“Grace is deceitful, and beauty is vain; But a woman that feareth Jehovah, she shall be praised. Give her of the fruit of her hands; And let her works praise her in the gates” (Prov. 31:30, 31).
JUST A WORD PLEASE!

This fourth edition of Bible Women is marked by many radical changes from the first three in the series. These changes will be noted:
1) All characters studied are placed under the Period of Bible History, to which they belong. Every lesson displays these headings: The Period of History, the time of it, the scriptures covered by it, and the Dispensation of Time. In the New Testament, the Periods of Life of Christ, and the Divisions of Acts are followed with the same consistency. At a glance, the teacher and student may recognize the Period of Bible History and the characters who lived at that time.
2) A chart featuring these divisions is included in the book.
3) With rare exceptions, all characters are arranged chronologically.
4) The questions are often recast, to clarify the meaning, and to provoke thought.
5) Where differences of opinion might appear, secondary arguments have been presented as well. These are presented along with the original questions.
6) Many of the minor persons, mentioned in the first edition were omitted in the second, but they have been included again here. Therefore the study will take longer than a year.
7) An addendum to lesson 22 has been added to give researched notes to students and teachers because of the controversial nature of some of the questions.

This revision is a mite of gratitude for the gracious and extensive reception of previous editions. Its growth in popularity demanded the best the author could give. No efforts have been spared to make it the best. It is intentionally different from any other course of study and fills a niche in the walls of Bible Study, not occupied by any other outline, used by the churches of the Lord Jesus Christ. It should give the users an insight to the Bible never before realized. It is therefore sent forth with a prayerful hope that both the teacher and student will be richly blessed in their quest for His “unsearchable riches.”

SUGGESTIONS FOR TEACHERS

1) Prepare your lesson well. It will add interest and zest to the class, and it will gain the confidence and respect of the pupils.
2) Have a certain time to begin and close the lesson. Nothing helps quite as much as doing things on time and with regularity.
3) Make assignments to the students of the questions starred (*); these assignments are to be related in story form. This saves time, aids in covering the lessons, and breaks the routine of the recitation.
4) With the students, memorize the periods of Bible History and the Bible Dispensations.
5) Have frequent drills on the Periods of History and of the characters studied. This will aid the memory and add life to the course.
6) Do not argue or permit arguments in the class. This is the surest way to kill interest. Permit each lady to express herself freely and pass on to the next question.
7) Do not do all the talking; this is not a lecture course. Solicit the fullest cooperation of all.

2. Who were her sons? What was the occupation of each (Gen. 4:20, 21)?

PERIOD OF PREPARATION

PLEASE NOTE: This lesson was not originally in chronological order. It should be placed near or before the lessons about Sarah, Abraham's wife. Evidence for placing the Book of Job early in Hebrew history is found in Job 1:3 and Job 15:19.

Job 1:3—“His substance also was seven thousand sheep, and three thousand camels, and five hundred yoke of oxen, and five hundred she asses, and a very great household; so that this man was the greatest of all the men of the east.” If you count up the value of all he owned, it could not have been more than about $500,000 worth. Abraham's possessions were much greater.

Job 15:19—“Unto whom alone the earth was given, and no stranger passed among them.” The friends of Job evidently had to get their wisdom and knowledge from “the ancients” (Noah and his children) who were alone on the earth after the flood abated.

JOB'S WIFE
1. How many children did she have (1:2)?
2. What of their wealth (1:3)?
3. What about the mutual association of the children (1:4)?
4. What about the parental care which Job displays (1:5)?
5. What about Job's personal character (1:8)?
7. What about his personal affliction (2:7-8)?
8. What foolish thing did Job’s wife suggest (2:9)?
9. What could have been her motive (1 Kings 21:10)?
10. How did Job rebuke her (2:10)?

POINTS TO CONSIDER:
1. Did she not become an accomplice to Satan with her suggestion?
2. Could there be any higher treason than to curse God (1 Kings 21:10)?
3. Was she in essence asking her husband to sell his soul?
4. There may be many ways that wives influence their husbands to “sell out” to Satan.
5. Was this possibly the most trying of Job’s temptations?
6. It is generally accepted that God endowed woman with an “affectionate heart, a mild disposition, and a sensitive love. For what purpose (Gen. 2:20-24)?

7. How was Job blessed for his faithfulness (42:10-12)?

JEMIMAH—Day, Warm, Affectionate; KEZIAH—Cassia; KEREN HAPPUCH—Horn of Paint (cosmetic)

1. Whose daughters were they (42:10, 13-14)?
2. How did they compare with the daughters of the land (42:15)?
3. How were they rewarded (42:15)?
4. What about Job’s latter end (42:16-17)?

POINTS TO CONSIDER:

1. Why, possibly, was Job’s wife not mentioned in later life?
2. Does God always reward faithfulness (1:2-3; 42:12-14)?
3. How does he reward the faithful now (Mark 10:28-30)?
4. How many daughters did Job have at the first (Job 1:2)?
5. How many daughters did God give Job after his training? (Job 42:13)
6. Though Job was given twice as many possessions as he had before (Job 42:10), nevertheless, he had exactly the same number of sons and daughters that he had at first.
7. Note a few other scriptures about Job’s first set of children (Job 1:4-5).
8. Did Job or his wife attend the birthdays (Job 1:19)? How do you know?

Note other scriptures about birthdays (Gen. 40:20-22; Job 3:1; Matt. 14:6).

BATHSHEBA—DAUGHTER OF AN OATH

1. History of Bathsheba's David: 2 Sam. 3 and 4 Saul's son, Ishbosheth, who began to reign over Israel after Saul's death, is killed. In chapter 5:1-3, David is crowned king over Israel. He is 38 or so years old (2 Sam. 5:4-5). After battle with the Philistines (2 Sam. 5:17-25), he was able to recover the Ark Of The Covenant which had been captured when Samuel was young, and to bring it back to Jerusalem with great rejoicing. He aspired to build a house for the Lord, but was told that his son will build it instead (chapter 7). The Lord was with him to secure his throne and give him victory over all the surrounding area (chapter 8) (See verses 14-18, and also chapter 10). This is a long reading, but vital for understanding the situation.

2. Who was Bathsheba (2 Sam. 11:3)?

   C. What comfort was given to Bathsheba after the death of her child (2 Sam. 12:24)?

6. Who tried to usurp David's authority and exalt himself in the place of Solomon as king (1 Kings 1:1, 5-7)? Who brought about the frustration of this person's plans (1 Kings 1:1-53)?

7. *Tell of Solomon's coronation (1 Kings 1:28; 32-40). Note the symbolic items and processes used in this event and compare these to the coronation of other kings. Compare these to Christ's coronation. This will be a longer answer, which might easily be used for a devotional article. Do your best.

8. After the death of David, how did Adonijah manipulate Bathsheba to attempt to gain power (1 Kings 2:13-25)?

MAACHAH—DEPRESSION

1. Whose daughter was Maachah (2 Sam. 3:3)? (Geshur is a kingdom in Bashan.)
2. Whose mother was she (1 Chron. 3:2; the third child of David, born to him in Hebron)--we also see that she had at least one other child, (2 Sam. 13:1). Both children were "fair" to look upon, so it seems likely that Maachah may have been beautiful.

AP Content: Alleged Discrepancies
Jesse's Missing Son
by Eric Lyons, M.Min.

Some time ago, I received a letter from a woman who was seeking an answer to a question that an unbeliever had presented to her. The question that gave her so much trouble, and that seemed to plant a seed of doubt in her mind about the inerrancy of Scripture, was this: “Did Jesse (the father of David) have seven sons or eight?” This question arises from a comparison of the information about Jesse’s family in 1 Sam. 16-17 with the genealogy given in 1 Chronicles chapter two.

First Samuel 16 states that Jesse made seven sons pass before the prophet Samuel, in hopes that God would anoint one of them as the next king of Israel (16:10). Samuel then informed Jesse that God had not chosen any of these seven sons that passed before him, but was looking for another. Of course, that other son was David, “the youngest” (16:11) of Jesse’s “eight sons” (17:12). The “problem” with this information is that the genealogy in 1 Chronicles 2:13-15 specifically states that David was “the seventh” son of Jesse. How is it that David could be both the seventh son and eighth son of Jesse? Some are eager to call this a legitimate Bible contradiction. Even many Bible students (like the one who wrote me about this question) read these statements for the first time and wonder if this is an “inconsistency in the Word.” What is the answer? How many sons did Jesse have? And was David Jesse’s eighth son or seventh?

The answer is really quite simple. It seems that one of Jesse’s sons shown to Samuel at Bethlehem must have died while young and without posterity. Thus, at one time David was the youngest of eight sons, and at another time he was the youngest of seven sons. We must keep in mind that Hebrew genealogies often included only the names of those who have some significance for future generations (Richards, 1993, p. 106; Nelson’s Illustrated Bible Dictionary, 1986). It makes sense that if one of David’s brothers died before marrying and begetting children (or before doing something extraordinary), he would not have been mentioned.

Lest you think this situation sounds too bizarre, consider the following. Fifty years ago, whenever my father engaged in a discussion about his family, he would tell people that he had five brothers and two sisters. Today, when he converses with others about his family he often speaks of his four brothers and two sisters. Is he being dishonest when he does so? No. Sadly, when my dad was 19 years old, one of his younger brothers died in a tragic accident. Although this brother was loved deeply and is missed greatly, usually when my father is asked about his siblings he simply says: “I have four brothers and two sisters.” If he has time or feels there is a need, he then will mention his other brother who died at a very young age. The point is, whether my dad tells someone that he is the oldest of eight children or the oldest of seven children, he is telling the truth.

Admittedly, the Bible does not say specifically that one of David’s brothers died at a young age. But, it most likely is implying such a thing when one less son is mentioned in 1 Chronicles 2:13-15. [And considering David’s three oldest brothers were warriors in Saul’s army (1 Samuel 17:13ff), one certainly would not be surprised if one of David’s other brothers also became a soldier and died in battle.]

To say that one of David’s brothers dying at a relatively young age is not an option is to assert that the Bible does not teach by implication. [Yet, as anyone who has studied the Bible knows, it most certainly does teach by implication (cf. Acts 8:35-36).] Furthermore, if people today who have lost children or siblings can speak legitimately about their family number in two different ways, should we not also give Bible writers the same freedom in their recording of historical families?

A HINT OF "SCANDAL" IN DAVID'S FAMILY

"Behold, I was brought forth in iniquity, and in sin did my mother conceive me." (Psalm 51:5)

The verse quoted above has long been one of the strongholds of those who promote the doctrine of "Original Sin" in one or other of its various forms.

However, for those of us who do NOT believe that doctrine is supported by the rest of Scripture, it is far more logical to assume that the verse has a different meaning.

We have all heard the phrase "living in sin". And we all know that in plain English, it means that two parties are living together without benefit of wedlock. To be "conceived in sin" is to be born as a result of such a liaison.

If we bypass the "invented theology" of "original sin", it is far more logical to take the verse at face value, and assume that there may have been some "scandal" associated with the circumstances of David's birth.

We find some evidence which tends to support that in some of the snippets of genealogical information which are given about David and his family.

From 1 Sam. 17:12 we learn that David is one of eight brothers. 1 Chron. 2:13-16 names seven, as well as two sisters, Zeruiah, and Abigail.

The sons of Zeruiah include Joab and Abishai and Asahel. Abishai was with David in exile. 1 Sam. 26:6. Joab, Abishai, and Asahel all became leaders in David's army. This probably means that although nephews of David, they were of a similar age, and that therefore David's two sisters were much older than David.

Then in 2 Sam. 17:25 we learn that in fact Zeruiah and Abigail were only David's HALF SISTERS. Their father was Nahash.... not Jesse!

Nahash was an Ammonite King who had "dealt loyally with David". (1 Sam. 10:2) It seems reasonable to speculate that this is the same Nahash who was the father of Zeruiah and Abigail. If David's two half sisters were in fact the daughters of this Nahash, then Joab, Abishai, and Asahel were his grandsons. So of course it could be expected that Nahash would have a strong incentive to "deal loyally with David" for the sake of his daughters and grandsons.

All of that suggests a "hint of scandal" in the circumstances of David's birth. His mother had two daughters by Nahash, before David was born. Nahash was still living when she bore David to Jesse.

What were the rest of the circumstances? Alas...... There are too many things left unsaid, to go any further. Some of the unanswered questions include:
• Was David's mother a "divorcee"?
• Or was she perhaps a Jewish captive of war, a slave and concubine in the house of Nahash, who had later been "rescued", or set free?
• Is it possible that she was an Ammonite? (See Deut. 23:3)
• Was she perhaps Jesse's second wife? Or not married to Jesse at all?
• Were David's seven brothers, actually only half brothers?
• Is any of that the reason why, when Samuel asked to meet Jesse's sons, David was not called?
• Does it have anything to do with the reason why David was kept away from the rest of the family, tending the flocks?
• Does it contribute to the apparent antagonism of his oldest brother towards him (1 Sam 17:28)?

While we must leave those puzzling questions unanswered, there is certainly enough "hint of scandal" there, to provide a reasonable explanation for David's statement that he was "brought forth in iniquity and conceived in sin".

And it is far more intellectually satisfying than the MYTH of "Original Sin"!

Are men born sinners?

A commonly abused "proof text" is Psalm 51:5. Although I cannot claim the following as a result of my own scholarship or research, the information is a culmination from many sources over the years, and, I feel, the best explanation of this particular text that I have come across.

Wm. P. Murray, Jr

Psalm 51:5- "Behold, I was shapen in iniquity, and in sin did my mother conceive me." KJV

This is a Hebrew poetic parallelism, with the second line of the verse saying the same thing as the first line in a slightly different way.

The first verb, of which David is the subject, is in the Pulal tense (as is "made" in # Job 15:7), which is an idiom used to refer to creation or origins, and is the `passive' form of Polel ("formed": # Ps 90:2 Prov. 26:10). TWOT, #623, 1:270.

The subject of this verse is NOT the state or constitution of David's nature as a sinner at, or before, his birth. The subject is, as the verse clearly states, the `circumstances' of his conception- the sexual union which produced him was an act of sin, and addresses the unrighteousness of his mother's act, not anything (such as a sin nature) inherent within himself.

The NIV's version of this verse is an INTERPRETATION, not a translation: "Surely I was sinful at birth, sinful from the time my mother conceived me."

David had two half-sisters (Zeruiah, Abigail).....:

1 Chron. 2:13-16 13 “And Jesse begat his firstborn Eliab, and Abinadab the second, and Shimma the third, 14 Nethaneel the fourth, Raddai the fifth, 15 Ozem the sixth, David the seventh: 16 Whose sisters were Zeruiah, and Abigail. And the sons of Zeruiah; Abishai, and Joab, and Asahel, three. 17 And Abigail bare Amasa: and the father of Amasa was Jether the Ishmaelite."

....and the father of David's half-sisters was not Jesse, but Nahash: 2 Sam. 17:25 “And Absalom made Amasa captain of the host instead of Joab: which Amasa was a man's son, whose name was Ithra an Israelite, that went in to Abigail the daughter of Nahash, sister to Zeruiah Joab's mother."

Nahash, the father of Zeruiah and Abigail, David's half-sisters, was an Ammonite king.

1 Sam. 11:1 “Then Nahash the Ammonite came up, and encamped against Jabeshgilead: and all the men of Jabesh said unto Nahash, Make a covenant with us, and we will serve thee.”

1 Sam. 12:12 “And when ye saw that Nahash the king of the children of Ammon came against you, ye said unto me, Nay; but a king shall reign over us: when the LORD your God was your king.”

David's father was Jesse, not Nahash. Zeruiah and Abigail were David's half-sisters through his mother's previous marriage to Nahash. This would also help explain why Nahash showed kindness to David, perhaps out of respect for David's mother, Nahash's former wife and the mother of two of Nahash's children.

2 Sam. 10:2 “Then said David, I will shew kindness unto Hanun the son of Nahash, as his father shewed kindness unto me. And David sent to comfort him by the hand of his servants for his father. And David's servants came into the land of the children of Ammon.”

David's mother was most likely the second wife of Jesse, the first wife being the mother of David's half-brothers. Jesse's first wife's standing before the 'righteousness of the law', (her not having been married to, or the concubine of, a heathen king, as was David's mother), would have been superior to that of David's mother, and explains why David's half-brothers, Jesse's other sons, would have felt they were superior to David, and why he would be accused of being prideful, for thinking he was as good as them [sic]...

1 Sam. 17:28-30 28 "And Eliab his eldest brother heard when he spake unto the men; and Eliab's anger was kindled against David, and he said, Why camest thou down hither? and with whom hast thou left those few sheep in the wilderness? I know thy pride, and the naughtiness of thine heart; for thou art come down that thou mightest see the battle. 29 And David said, What have I now done? Is there not a cause? 30 And he turned from him toward another, and spake after the same manner: and the people answered him again after the former manner."

...and why David was not considered, by his father Jesse, as 'true' a son as his half-brothers. Samuel had called Jesse and his sons, and thus expected 'all' his sons, to the sacrifice (1 Sam. 16:5, 11). Jesse, having been told to bring 'his sons' by a prophet of the Lord everyone feared (1 Sam. 16:4), was confident he had obeyed the prophet, even knowing he did not bring David....

1 Sam. 16:11 “And Samuel said unto Jesse, Are here all thy children? And he said, There remaineth yet the youngest, and, behold, he keepest the sheep. And Samuel said unto Jesse, Send and fetch him: for we will not sit down till he come hither.”

....which would be consistent with God's sometimes choosing that which men esteemed as worthless (the 'least') to be the greatest: (Gideon- Judg. 6:15; King Saul- 1 Sam. 9:21; Jesus-Matt. 2:6, Luke 9:48)

David's mother was apparently a Jewish woman, because no Ammonite shall enter the congregation of the Lord to the 10th generation’ (Deut. 23:3), and yet in Psa. 86:16 and Psa. 116:16, David refers to himself as "the son of thy handmaid", which would seem to testify to his mother's relationship with the Lord. David's mother was, in the eyes of Jewish law, considered 'defiled' by her previous relationship to an Ammonite.

NAHASH

na’-hash (nachash, "serpent"; Naas):

(1) The father of Abigail and Zeruiah, the sisters of David (2 Sam. 17:25; compare 1 Chron. 2:16). The text in 2 S, where this reference is made, is hopelessly corrupt; for that reason there are various explanations. The rabbis maintain that Nahash is another name for Jesse, David's father. Others think that Nahash was the name of Jesse's wife; but it is not probable that Nahash could have been the name of a woman. Others explain the passage by making Nahash the first husband of Jesse's wife, so that Abigail and Zeruiah were half-sisters to King David.

(2) A king of Ammon, who, at the very beginning of Saul's reign, attacked Jabesh-gilead so successfully, that the inhabitants sued for peace at almost any cost, for they were willing to pay tribute and serve the Ammonites (1 Sam. 11:1). The harsh king, not satisfied with tribute and slavery, demanded in addition that the right eye of every man should be put out, as "a reproach upon Israel." They were given seven days to comply with these cruel terms. Before the expiration of this time, Saul, the newly anointed king, appeared on the scene with an army which utterly routed the Ammonites (1 Sam. 11:1), and, according to Josephus, killed King Nahash (Ant., VI, v, 3).

If the Nahash of 2 Sam. 10:2 be the same as the king mentioned in 1 Sam. 11, this statement of Josephus cannot be true, for he lived till the early part of David's reign, 40 or more years later. It is, of course, possible that Nahash, the father of Hanun, was a son or grandson of the king defeated at Jabesh-gilead by Saul. There is but little agreement among commentators in regard to this matter. Some writers go so far as to claim that "all passages in which this name (Nahash) is found refer to the same individual."

(3) A resident of Rabbath-ammon, the capital of Ammon (2 Sam. 17:27). Perhaps the same as Nahash (2), which see. His son Shobi, with other trans-Jordanic chieftains, welcomed David at Mahanaim with sympathy and substantial gifts when the old king was fleeing before his rebel son Absalom. Some believe that Shobi was a brother of Hanun, king of Ammon (2 Sam. 10:1).
